Copyright Notice For 'TATVIQ', IPO Intelligence Tool Built By Rehaan Kumar

Under the Copyright Act, 1957 of India, copyright protection arises automatically upon the creation of an original work and does not depend on registration. The Government of India's Copyright Office expressly recognises that copyright comes into existence as soon as a work is created and that no formality is required to acquire it. Registration remains optional and primarily serves as prima facie evidence of ownership in the event of a legal dispute.

Accordingly, the original source code, website design, written content, documentation, analytical framework, and other original creative elements developed for TATVIQ are protected under Indian copyright law from the moment of their creation. As the creator of those original works, I am entitled to assert copyright ownership in them, subject to any applicable third-party licences or legal limitations.

The use of the notice “© 2026 TATVIQ. All rights reserved.” is therefore appropriate. The copyright symbol serves as a public notice that the content is protected by copyright and that the associated rights are reserved by the copyright owner. This copyright notice is distinct from trademark protection, which is governed by separate laws and registration requirements.
